

It is the student's responsibility to work with faculty to determine how best to compensate for any missed classes/course work. Faculty are not obligated to re-teach material missed due to absence. Students should familiarize themselves with each individual course attendance policy as stated by the instructor or in the class syllabus.

Does the fundamental nature of the course rely on student participation as an essential method for learning?

To what degree does a student's failure to attend class constitute a significant loss to the educational experience of the class as a whole?

Are attendance requirements listed in the course syllabus? What are the classroom practices and policies regarding attendance?

What method is used to calculate a final grade for the course?

Are there specific assignments or exams, which have unmovable dates, and would not be permitted for flexibility?

If an absence occurs on a date that an assignment is due or there is a scheduled exam, will the student be able to submit the assignment via email or turn it in late and/or reschedule the exam?
